Board of Directors Chair Report Council of Agencies Serving South Asians (CASSA)

2010 had been a year of engagement, accomplishment and relentless challenges for CASSA. The Strategic Plan guided us and we have made progress in many areas in collaboration with our community partners and stakeholders. Our role is to be a collective voice that advocates for issues of social and economic justice and encourages progressive social change.

CASSA has been committed to ensuring that equity and justice related needs of the South Asian communities and by extension all communities, is recognized in all circles of Canadian society.

CASSA's work has involved mobilizing, creating opportunities for people to dialogue and creating movements for change. We consistently and publicly push all levels of government on social issues through policy change, leadership, mobilization, research, allocation of resources and training. It has been through grass roots level organizing – the work of people coming together to create change that CASSA continues to achieve its success. As we do this work, we continue to learn, build partnerships and collaborate with communities across the province of Ontario. We have been involved in community engagement and capacity building work in Vaughan, Markham, Brampton, Scarborough, Waterloo and Peterborough. We have also made head way into making connections with South Asian communities in Vancouver and Washington, DC. This opens up many possibilities for CASSA in terms of future coalitions and collaborations.

CASSA would never be able to do its work without its members, funders, partners and its many volunteers. CASSA is proud to engage in this work, but we know we cannot do it without the active, dedicated and tireless involvement of our communities. I encourage every one of you to continue to support CASSA and keep us engaged, progressive and accountable.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many volunteers of CASSA. You are our strength, and we depend on you to make CASSA's projects and initiatives successful.

I would also like to thank our funders, without whom it would not be possible for our work to happen. CASSA appreciates the support we have received from our funders: the Metcalf Foundation, Atkinson Foundation, the City of Toronto, and the Government of Canada.

Funding continues to be a challenge for CASSA. CASSA has embarked on an ambitious fundraising program to increase our funding sources. We are creating partnerships with our member organizations, finding ways to share and pool resources to minimize costs and planning fundraising events. We held our first CASSA Nite dinner/dance event to great success. In the future, we will make this an annual signature event of South Asian Heritage Month.

CASSA's staff is small, but very effective. I am impressed and grateful for the level of commitment and passion shown by the staff, led by Neethan Shan, the Executive Director. I would also like to thank Anita Khanna (former staff) who stepped in as Interim ED in the fall of 2010 and Farhat Hasan, our Finance & Office Administrator. The remarkable accomplishments of CASSA are mainly due to its dedicated, innovative and creative staff. We simply cannot thank all of you enough.

Finally, I would like to thank my fellow Board members. It has been an honour to work with you in delivering CASSA's mandate. We have worked very hard together, supported many worthy causes, provoked interesting discussions, and learned from one another's expertise and passions.

The next years will bring new challenges and successes to CASSA. We will continue our work in the areas of poverty reduction, access to health care, anti-oppression, social and economic justice, and strengthening community capacity. We will continue to provide support and respond to emerging community concerns. I welcome everyone to join us in this work to create a Canada that is free from all forms of inequity and to create an inclusive society where every person feels fully empowered to participate in defining Canada's social, political, economic, and cultural future.

Thank you

Anusha Sarvanandan

Executive Director's Report

Council of Agencies Serving South Asians (CASSA)

2010 was another exciting year at CASSA. We had many amazing projects that took us forward in our fight for social and economic justice. There were many activities and projects but I would like to highlight some major project activities in this report.

Welcoming Communities Initiative:

After initiating Equity Council in York Region, we had shifted our work to Peterborough and Waterloo regions. In Peterborough, CASSA worked with local partners to develop tools for making Transit more accessible for immigrants and newcomers. In Waterloo Region, CASSA worked with local partners to develop ways to improve newcomers' access to community gardens. After the release of the report on access to trades, we continued to do further research on the topic in 2010. CASSA also launched the website www.welcomingcommunitiesontario.ca as a portal for information on immigration through the lens of equity and anti-oppression.

Poverty Reduction Initiative:

CASSA became the Toronto lead for the Ontario-wide project of Colour of Poverty – Colour of Change. CASSA continued to public forums, town halls, trainings and other activities aimed at increasing awareness about racialization of poverty. We also began building support for organizing for employment equity in the later part of 2010. CASSA organized Anti-Poverty Action Conference on March 22nd, titled “Anti-Poverty Action Conference: Agencies Exercising Agency Poverty Reduction” at Oakham House, Ryerson University. A panel and a keynote speaker discussed various topics related to poverty reduction strategies and six workshops addressing poverty in multidimensional contexts were offered for conference attendees.

Youth Engagement Initiative:

CASSA implemented the Trailblazers project with over 30 youth from six neighbourhoods were trained and mentored around violence prevention projects. The youth had developed and implemented four community projects in their respective communities. CASSA set up a community of practice for frontline youth workers who work with South Asian youth and families. South Asian Youth Advisory Committee (SAYAC) continued its advocacy work including organizing the third annual Fires of Resistance youth conference at Ryerson University. CASSA coordinated a project aimed at increasing awareness about Islamophobia and discrimination/profiling against Tamil youth.

Health Equity Initiative:

After compiling the information from our four roundtables and conducting a detailed literature review and environmental scan, CASSA released the report on South Asians and health equity in Spring 2010. We have now established a Health Equity team of volunteers to coordinate our efforts aimed at reducing health inequities faced by South Asians.

Seniors Advocacy Initiative:

CASSA had begun working with Bangladeshi and Tamil seniors on training them on advocacy efforts. Tenants of Toronto Community Housing were trained on ways in which they can advocate with the system. Youth and seniors were brought together to address inter-generational issues.

Other projects in 2010:

In 2010, CASSA continued to work on research projects with various universities, including University of Toronto, Wilfred Laurier University, York University, University of British Columbia and Ryerson University on topics related to experiences of racialized youth, women and seniors.

CASSA had completed the first phase of a project titled Amplifying Voices that aimed at strengthening our member agencies' outreach efforts to South Asian LGBTQ communities.

CASSA supported the formation of South Asian Educators Network in York Region made up of teachers and educational administrators. SAEN is focussing on supporting educators in the professional development while getting involved in activities that help South Asian students and parents.

We also assisted in strengthening the Social Planning Council in York Region through supporting community organizing in Markham, Vaughan and Richmond Hill. CASSA had offered an intern to support the functioning of the council during the first quarter of 2010.

CASSA was involved in advising various partnerships as an active member including Into health partnership, where CASSA assisted in reaching out to diverse community members through consultations. CASSA also assisted the Local Immigration Partnership project in Kennedy Park-Eglinton East. CASSA played a key role in the Reunification and Adaptation Project (RAP) proposal development.

CASSA organized a series of activities for South Asian Heritage Month (May 2010) that included poster competition, May Day awards, City Hall reception and youth leadership retreat.

In 2010, we continued to support many coalitions as a member. This included Colour of Poverty, Good Jobs for All Coalition and Equity Toronto. There were many other activities and projects that were undertaken by CASSA in 2010 and these details can be found on our website and in our semi-monthly newsletters.

I would like to thank the board of directors (led by our chair, Anusha Sarvanandan) for its leadership, guidance and support. We accomplished many things in 2010 with very limited resources. This was only possible due to the hard work our dedicated staff and volunteers. My sincere thanks go to the entire CASSA team for continuing to fight for social and economic justice in Ontario.

Sincerely,
Neethan Shan (Executive Director)
